

Parsons School of Design Environmental Design projects taught by Jean McClintock Gardner

Collection, PC020501

About

This small record group documents two New York City-based projects taught by Parsons School of Design professor Jean McClintock Gardner in the early 1970s. One project focused on the Southern Boulevard Redemption Area in the Bronx, the other on Union Square in Manhattan. These projects involved original research and urban rehabilitation design proposals by students in the Environmental Design Department (now the School of Constructed Environments).

Materials include a grant application, an audio recording, a press kit and publicity records, and student research in the form of data sets, interview summaries, design proposals, drafts and final reports, and maps.

Collection Guide

Guide to the Parsons School of Design Environmental Design projects taught by Jean McClintock Gardner

There's more! What you see here is only what is viewable online; in most cases it is only a small portion of what is available. Please visit the collection guide to find out more.

Related people/organizations

(is related to); Jean Gardner (Teacher); Parsons School of Design. Environmental and Interior Design Department (is related to)

Collection Contents

Parsons School of Design Environmental Design projects taught by Jean McClintock Gardner (2 records)

Model of S. Klein with Sidewalk Arcade

Union Square Project